SELECTED CASTES, BY DISTRICTS

This table was extracted at the request of the local government, and at their expense. The selection was made on the following basis:—

- (i) All scheduled castes (including Hindu members of 16 tribes) were included.
- (ii) All other castes were included which have at any time been considered for inclusion in the schedule.
- (iii) Such other castes were included as, according to the census of 1931, were found to have a strength of not less than 4 per 1,000. In addition there is one caste, which nearly reaches this minimum, namely the Baruis.
- (iv) Agarwallas, Baidyas and Rajputs have also been extracted, although they fulfil none of the previous conditions, on account of their social importance. Agarwallas do not include Jains.

2. The figures exhibited in this table in all probability do not represent the true strength for any caste. This is because about one quarter of the total number of Hindus failed to return any particulars from which it would be possible to deduce what caste they belonged to.

3. At the request and at the expense of the Durbar of Tripura State, a number of castes which are found in that state have been extracted. The selection of these castes was made by the Durbar. For some of these castes the figures give a total which is probably less than their real strength; for in this state also, a number of Hindus, about one-eighth of the whole, failed to return any caste.

4. Of the sixteen tribes included in this table, 14 figure in the list of scheduled castes. The figures for tribes comprise only those persons who profess Hinduism.

5. Not all castes are represented in every district and some are so restricted in location that to save printing space their figures are assembled below:—
